

CONNECT
Building an Indo-Dutch Community

The Dam and Royal Palace

The Dam is the designated "place to meet". It is a square in front of a historic building that is now a Royal Palace and was formerly the Town Hall, which is now open for touring.

Our Principal Sponsor
Netherlands Foreign Investment Agency

holland. NETHERLANDS BOARD OF TOURISM & CONVENTIONS

home about us newsletter feedback our sponsors contact us

- Strengthening Relations
Marten van den Berg
- Liveable Indian Cities
Dr Amit Kapoor
- Preying Men
About Irreligious Happenings
- Moving Through Waste
Avinash Narayanaswamy

Issue 34 - 8th April, 2010

Dr Amit Kapoor
As India grows to become one of the world's most dynamic economic regions, Indian cities are competing with each other and cities in the larger Asian region to bring in new business and attract talent. Cities also bear the brunt of increasing populations, changing lifestyles and the onslaught of new business activities. A recent study conducted jointly by the Institute for Competitiveness and the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) looks at Indian cities from the point of view of liveability. Team Connect conversed with Dr Amit Kapoor, one of the authors of the 'The Liveability Index 2010', about the issues the report throws up and possible solutions for the future. Dr. Kapoor is the Professor of Strategy and Industrial Economics at Management Development Institute and Honorary Chairman at Institute for Competitiveness.

The Netherlands' Economic Mission to India

- Company Profile - Elemention
- Must Experience - Maharaja Express
- Must Read - The India Way
- Must Know - The Ultimate Sound Probe

Feedback Please !

Sign up for our Newsletter

Your name

Your e-mail address
 SIGN UP